

Pluck the Turkey

I took two large Styrofoam balls and painted them brown ... used an egg-shaped Styrofoam ball for the head ... put on some wiggle eyes, a beak, a red "warbler" thing and used three toothpicks for legs (I know, but it wouldn't stand up with only two legs!) Then, I put the same number of feathers on both turkeys (I found some neat brown and orange feathers, but you could also use paper feathers) Then, you plucked one feather for each pound or fraction of a pound you lost ... the team with the most "naked" turkey at the end won!
